

THE DOANE FAMILY ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA, INC.

56th Biennial International Reunion July 21 – 25, 2020

Doane University | Crete, Nebraska USA The Doane/Doan cousins will meet in Nebraska this year!

oane Family Association members will gather in Crete, Nebraska this summer on the beautiful Doane University campus for our 56th biennial international reunion. Several of you have attended reunions here, and you can confirm that each DFA member should come here at least once and see this pretty place! Located just 25 miles southwest of Lincoln, our capital city, the event will be held on the wooded campus of the distinguished school founded by Colonel Thomas Doane (#500, Vol. 1), a civil engineer from New England. Colonel Doane, who came west to build a large section of the Burlington Missouri River Railroad line through Nebraska, had a dream to build a college in the image of Harvard and Yale. He picked a site on the hill high above the Big Blue River on the east edge of the fledgling town of Crete. The prairie college was incorporated in 1872, and over the past 148 years, has become a landmark - a premiere, innovative educational institution in Nebraska that is nationally and internationally known. A few of you are even proud alums of this institution!

During our reunion week, family members will learn about the Thomas Doane and David Brainerd Perry families, Nebraska's place in the country's westward movement, and see some of the area's most important cultural and historical sites. You will enjoy area tours, interesting historical presentations, a moving memorial service, great food and fellowship, and social and research time. You can also shop in the Doane University Bookstore and in downtown Crete. Our DFA historian will be set up in a special Sheldon Hall room to assist with genealogical research. Bonus side note: Reunion attendees will have the pleasure of hearing numerous trains running daily along Colonel Doane's still vital railroad line!! We think he would be so pleased to see how his line has flourished.

Nebraska: Honestly it's not for Everyone!

ABOUT CRETE, NEBRASKA

The settlement on the Crete townsite began in 1863 when Jesse and Elizabeth Bickle of Illinois staked a homestead claim on east bank of the Big Blue River. Other homesteaders also settled nearby. The Bickles built a log cabin that served as the first Crete post office, and Mr. Bickle platted a town site on a portion of his homestead. Although he is generally recognized as the official founder of Crete, numerous others, including Thomas Doane, and the Doane College founders, were heavily involved in Crete's early development. These New Englanders brought a certain refinement to the frontier town. Activities at the college added culture as did Nebraska's first Chautauqua, established here in 1883 by Doane College officials.

The town became a regional agricultural trade center soon after it was incorporated in 1871. When a bridge was completed over the Big Blue River that same year, the town began to serve as an outfitting point for settlers moving west by wagon.

Crete's 19th and 20th century population included several ethnic groups, the majority of whom were Bohemians and Germans. Crete's current population is now also represented by a significant number of Hispanic and Asian families who are more recent immigrants.

Several internationally-known industries are located in Crete. These companies produce items including pet foods, pork products, and raw corn products. The Crete Mills is the oldest industry in the community. It dates to 1869 when it opened as a sawmill under the name Mapleton Mills. By 1870, a grist mill was also operating there. The mill is still in business today as a division of the Bunge Milling Corporation, and processes corn used in a variety of snack food products for national and international markets. You may notice a "popcorn" or corn chip smell during your visit!

Thomas Doane's Burlington rail line is very active today as a vital link in United States rail infrastructure. The 100 mile section of the railroad running through Crete from Lincoln to Hastings is known as the Burlington Northern Sante Fe (BNSF) Hastings Subdivision. Not only does the Crete Mills ship and receive railcars daily (between 10-30 depending on contracts), the line is still used for east/ west/east pass-through commerce for many other industries, including Crete's concrete plant. Amtrak uses the line daily, east and westbound, for their route between Lincoln, Denver and beyond.

Crete continues to grow and prosper, and now boasts a population of more than 7,000 people.

ABOUT DOANE UNIVERSITY

Nebraska's first private liberal arts institution, Doane College, was founded in 1872 by New England Congregationalists led by Colonel Thomas Doane, chief civil engineer for the Burlington Missouri River Railroad (BMMR), and the Reverend Frederick Alley. Doane and his colleagues believed that children on the remote prairie should have the same educational advantages as New England children. Through his efforts, the railroad company donated 600 acres of land adjacent to Crete for the establishment of a campus.

The college began as an academy located in south Crete. This 1871 building, funded personally by Colonel Doane, was used for a variety of purposes. College, high school, and grammar school level classes, church services, and town hall meetings were among activities held there.

In the mid-1870s, college officials began preparing the hilltop tract donated by the railroad. Thomas Doane, President David Brainerd Perry, and mathematics/ surveying professor Arthur B. Fairchild designed the campus plan. Local nurseryman E.F. Stephens, who Colonel Doane hired to plant windbreaks along the railroad, was responsible for landscaping the property. Thomas Doane, like his father John Doane, engaged in arborculture, and tree planting on the campus was a high priority. It was this interest that led Doane to cross paths with Arbor Day founder J. Sterling Morton. By 1879, funds were secured to begin the construction of Merrill Hall, a three-story administration/classroom building. Completed in 1880, Merrill was a landmark in the Crete community until 1969, when it was destroyed by fire. The construction of Boswell Observatory (1883), Gaylord Hall (1884), and Whitin Library (1894), transformed the barren land to a respectable campus by 1900. Colonel Doane brought in prominent Boston architects, Cabot and Chandler, to design Gaylord and Merrill Halls. These four buildings defined the campus known to Colonel Doane during his lifetime (1821-1897).

Thomas Doane and his family integrated themselves into the community, and were active in the Crete Congregational Church. Colonel Doane was also an officer and founder of the State Bank of Nebraska in downtown Crete. Doane took an active role in the administration of the college and even built a Gothic Revival house south of the campus in 1871. Called "The Grange," the 40-acre estate was home to the Doane family when they weren't in Massachusetts. After Doane's daughter, Helen, married President Perry, they too, lived at The Grange with their four children who all attended the college.

Early Doane College administrators embraced the 19th century ethnic population in the Crete area. President Perry spoke several languages, but after he came here, he taught himself "Bohemian" in order to communicate with immigrant families and recruit students. Crete residents regularly came to campus for musical and theatrical events, and to view the constellations and planets through the Boswell Observatory telescope. Of course this mutual participation continues today. The town of Crete and the Doane community have an on-going healthy relationship.

Doane College was renamed Doane University in May, 2016 reflecting the growth and complexity of its programming. The name change was actually an endorsement of the way the institution had been operating for years – with multiple campuses and graduate programming.

Doane offers more than 40 undergraduate majors, several pre-professional programs, and a doctoral degree in Education. Current student population on the Crete campus is just over 1,500 undergraduates. Satellite campuses in Lincoln, Grand Island and Omaha serve more than 700 non-traditional undergraduate students and about 1,200 students in the masters and doctoral programs. The university retains about 350 acres of the original Crete campus tract that includes College Heights Country Club. The campus is a designated Nebraska Statewide Arboretum Site.

ABOUT NEBRASKA

Nebraska is a state of great diversity. We have rolling hills, many waterways, flat prairie land, and the unique and beautiful Sandhills, all features that make for interesting geographical variety. Our Sandhills area for example, is a distinctive region of mixed-grass prairie situated on grass-stabilized sand dunes. They cover more than one fourth of the state and sit on top of the massive Ogallala Aquifer. The dunes were designated a National Natural Landmark in 1984 for their significance as a special ecoregion. Nebraska has been known by various descriptors over the years -- some still in use --such as the Great America Desert, The Beef State, The Tree Planters State, The Cornhusker State, The Good Life, and more. While much of the state is rural and home to farms and ranches, there are also urban areas that offer superb cultural activities and opportunities that rival big cities.

Nebraska played a huge role in the country's westward expansion, and the major east-west route came right through this state. The overland trails that followed

DFA REUNION TOURS

The tours offered during this reunion showcase the state's early settlement history, and also take visitors to two world class attractions located in Lincoln. Please join us on one or both of these tours. If you are not interested in touring, you will find a lot the Platte River, best known as the Oregon and Mormon Trails, were well-traveled by people heading to the Gold Rush, even before the state became a territory in 1854. Interstate 80 was virtually built along this route. The National Homestead Act of 1862 brought waves of settlers seeking free land, Nebraska achieved statehood in 1867 and Thomas Doane, our college founder, arrived just two years later to build 240 miles of railroad from the Missouri River west into Nebraska.

to do exploring Doane's beautiful campus, visiting the university bookstore, or the town of Crete.

LINCOLN - NEBRASKA'S CAPITAL CITY

Nebraska's capital city, Lincoln, (2017 pop. 284,736) began as a little settlement called Lancaster, founded in 1856. People originally settled here to extract salt from the flats on Salt Creek. When Nebraska achieved statehood in 1867, a capital commission was created to chose a location for Nebraska's capital and the settlement of Lancaster was selected. The emerging city was named Lincoln, after Abraham Lincoln, and the first capitol building was completed in 1868. Lincoln is the second largest city in the state (Omaha taking first place) and is located just 25 miles from Crete. Lincoln is a cultural hub for the state, home to the University of Nebraska system, and a transportation center. The city is located on a main Burlington route (Thomas Doane's line), Interstate 80, and historically, the transcontinental Lincoln Highway and Omaha-Denver-Lincoln (OLD) Highway brought travelers right through town. The busy Lincoln Airport serves the commercial market and also serves as a military airport. Lincoln is a regular destination for Crete residents and Doane University students for services and entertainment.

During the Lincoln tour we will be treated to a special look at the unique, NEBRASKA STATE CAPITOL -- the tower of the plains. The internationally recognized building was designed by New York Architect Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue in 1920. Constructed in four phases over ten years from 1922-1932, the Nebraska capitol was the first statehouse to use an "office tower" as the featured design element. We will see the exquisite architectural features of the building, and learn of the on-going care and planning required by the Capitol Commission staff to ensure the building's historical integrity is preserved in a world requiring modern technology. The Commission's team of architects, skilled craftsmen, archivist, and more is housed on-site, and daily works closely with the maintenance department. Nebraska's capitol became a National Historic Landmark in 1976.

From the state capitol, the group will travel across town to the renowned INTERNATIONAL QUILT MUSEUM founded on the University of Nebraska's East Campus in 1997. Doane University has a connection to this world class center in that Doane University Navy V-12 Officer Trainee (1940s) Robert James and his wife, Ardis, launched the massive project by donating 950 quilts, and an endowment to care for the collection, to the University of Nebraska The center contains the world's largest public quilt collection that now numbers more than 3,000 pieces representing 24 countries and 400 years of quilt making. Here we will have lunch, and a special behind-the-scenes tour.

Next up is the MUSEUM OF AMERICAN SPEED established in 1992 by Bill "Speedy" Smith, founder of Speedway Motors. It showcases his automobile memorabilia collected over a 60 year period. Exhibits include racing cars from the 1920s to the present, vintage and antique automobiles, go-carts, engines, motorized toys, pedal cars, lunch boxes, and more. Of special interest to the DFA is the pedal car collection of former Lincoln car dealer Ron Doan. Doan, now in his mid-90s, collected cars of all kinds, and also owned Crooked Herman's pedal cars. We aren't yet sure how Ron fits into the family!

NEBRASKA CITY - HOME OF ARBOR DAY

Nebraska City (2017 pop. 7,313) played a major role in our country's westward movement. In 1804, the Lewis and Clark Expedition ordered by Thomas Jefferson, came through on the Missouri River. By 1846, the first Fort Kearny was established here to aid pioneers heading west, and in the 1850s, a ferry crossing was built to carry travelers and their wagons across the wide river. Nebraska City was incorporated in 1856, two years after Nebraska became a territory. Located on a trail that became known as the Nebraska City-Fort Kearny Cut-off to the Oregon Trail, the town was a "jumping off" point for westward expansion. It was a perfect link to the west. Many steamboats brought supplies and people up the river, and the well-known freighting company, Russell, Majors, and Waddell headquartered here to provide supplies for people traveling overland by wagon train. Nebraska City, well known as home to Arbor Day, now boasts 10 specialty museums and hosts an annual Apple Jack Festival each fall that draws thousands of people.

ARBOR LODGE MANSION, ARBOR DAY FARM, AND THE LIED LODGE

Arbor Lodge mansion was the home of Julius Sterling Morton and his family. A native of Michigan, he came to Nebraska City in 1855 to run the local newspaper, and bought a 160 acre treeless tract (part of the present day Arbor Day Farm) just west of the young Nebraska City. There Morton established a working farm and orchard. Morton planted many varieties of trees in addition to fruit trees, and the farm has continually grown apples since he began planting. Morton worked as a lawyer, editor, author, politician, and farmer, and became quite prosperous. He was the first United States Secretary of Agriculture, serving under Grover Cleveland, and promoted tree planting for shade, fruit, and windbreaks. He founded Arbor Day locally in April, 1872, the observance became official in 1874, and in 1885, it was declared a national legal holiday. Over time Arbor Day became a worldwide tradition.

The Mortons built their home, ARBOR LODGE, in 1860, and by that time, their farm had grown to 1,000 acres of land, much of it planted in fruit trees. The house was enlarged and remodeled in the 1870s, and in 1903 was again renovated to its present Neo-Classical style. Arbor Lodge is Nebraska's first state park. Morton's estate, known as ARBOR DAY FARM, now serves as home to the Arbor Lodge house museum, a working farm and orchard, site of the Tree Adventure activity area, and home to LIED LODGE. Lied Lodge, a hotel and conference center, was built in 1993 by the NATIONAL ARBOR DAY FOUNDATION as a sustainable operation using recycled materials, and operating via a wood-fired heating and cooling plant. We will stop here for a look at the building and wood-fired plant. The ARBOR DAY FOUNDATION headquarters is also located on Arbor Day Farm.

The LEWIS AND CLARK VISITOR CENTER features exhibits on the Corps of Discovery expedition (1804-06), including the hundreds of animal, plant, and scientific discoveries of the expedition. Located high on an 80 acre wooded Missouri River bluff, the center was built near where the Corps camped more than 200 years ago on their trek up the river. In addition to the exhibit building, the site features a replica Plains Indian earth lodge, nature trails, and more. We will have lunch here.

The NEBRASKA CITY MUSEUM OF FIREFIGHTING is dedicated to the preservation and interpretation of Nebraska's oldest volunteer fire department. The department was created in 1856 with a bucket brigade. Careful preservation over the years has resulted in a great interpretation of early firefighting in Nebraska City and the state.

TREE SCULPTURES

Nebraska's "Tree City" is adorned with 71 stylized tree sculptures placed all over town in public spaces. Designed by professional artists and Nebraska City students, this "Enchanted Arboretum" was unveiled in 2013.

SPECIAL REUNION ACTIVITIES

Wednesday, July 22 Runza™ SANDWICH DINNER

Germans from the Volga River area in Russia immigrated to Nebraska in the late 19th century and a large population of them settled in Lincoln. A common food staple of these immigrants was the Bierock or meat-filled bun. An entrepreneurial lady, Sarah "Sally" Brening Everett who was a good cook, coined the term "Runza™"</sup> (now trademarked) for the sandwich, and in 1949 she opened a small walk-up restaurant featuring this delicious item. The rest, as they say, is history. We will learn all about this Nebraska favorite during dinner!

Thursday, July 23 AUTHENTIC CZECH DINNER

Nebraska saw a large influx of Czech immigrants during the late 19th century fueled by the Homestead Act of 1962. The town of Crete and Doane University are located right in the heart of one of Nebraska's largest Czech settlement areas. This made for an interesting (and not always smooth) cultural mix here in Crete with the Czechs, some Germans, and the New Englanders who founded Doane University all living together in this little town in early days. To celebrate this rich component of Crete's heritage, we will take you out to dinner Thursday night to Wilber, Nebraska for a traditional Czech meal. Wilber was designated the nation's Czech Capital by Congress in 1987, which was quite an honor. An annual Czech festival is held there each August that attracts about 35,000 people.

Meetings on Monday and Tuesday will be held in this residence hall. Parking on campus is free and available near Sheldon Hall, and also adjacent to the Campus Center and the Art and Ed Building where DFA activities will be held.
